Perspectives and Interpretation

Historical interpretation is the process by which an explanation of past events is constructed. Interpretation is based on primary and secondary historical sources. Evidence, contexts and points of view all form the basis of historical interpretation.

Looking at historical perspective means understanding the social, cultural, intellectual, and emotional settings that shaped people's lives and actions in the past.

Cause and Consequence

In historical terms, every event has a cause, and is itself the cause of subsequent events, which may therefore be considered its effect(s), or consequences. Recognising the relationship between the two is vital to deeper historical understanding and causal explanation should be a primary feature in history teaching and learning at all stages within the school curriculum.

Continuity and Change

Historical change is an all-encompassing term used to describe the changing of events over the course of time. Historical change happens constantly and includes both major events and seemingly insignificant events. Historical change takes place through the process of cause and consequence. There are sometimes several causes that continuity refers to things that stay the same, relatively unchanged, over time.

Historical Vocabulary

Historical vocabulary can be placed into various categories: - language related to the passing of time e.g. yesterday; language related to the measuring of time e.g. decade; historical roles e.g. monarch; concepts and more abstract terms e.g. democracy. Some of the more abstract terms benefit from being taught through concrete and practical examples to help children to fully understand them. They should then be able to interpret historical language within contexts e.g. questions, concepts.

Similarities and Differences

Comparison is a tool used by historians to analyse historical events, societal features, and values and beliefs within and across different time periods in order to discover things of historical importance or interest e.g. common causes, stages of development or to demonstrate a larger historical pattern. By looking for similarities and differences, children are then able to identify, analyse and evaluate findings, giving reasons for their conclusions.

Chronology

Understanding chronology is vital in helping children position their learning within a linear narrative. It involves sequencing, placing and connecting periods of history as part of a framework which should reinforce and increase their depth of knowledge and understanding.

* Evidence is a thread that runs throughout the history curriculum. Evidence can take various forms, including printed sources e.g. documents; physical evidence e.g. artefacts; oral accounts and testimony. Primary sources relate to original, first-hand evidence while secondary sources provide second-hand information that comes from the description, analysis, interpretation and evaluation of primary evidence.

Pupils will continue to develop their understanding of chronology through plotting key events and dates in Ranulph Fiennes' early life. They will then look at his record-breaking expeditions and the impact these have had on the discovery and understanding of some of the most remote places on our planet through a range of source materials. Finally, pupils will have the opportunity to plan their own courageous challenge using Ranulph's charity work as an inspiration.

Athens v Sparta  Pupils will begin this unit by using inter-disciplinary skills, employing geographical knowledge in locating Greece on a present-day map and noting some its key features, and historical knowledge in comparing it with a map of Ancient Greece. A key focus of this unit is comparing the city states of Athens and Sparta and recognise that their differences meant that they did not live peacefully together. Pupils will explore cause and consequence when learning about key events in Ancient Greek times, such as the Persian Wars. They will also learn about continuity through some Ancient Greek legacies that are still influential today, like democracy and the alphabet. Concepts NC - Pupils should be taught about Ancient Greece through a study of Greek life and achievements and their influence on the western world	Under the Canopy  Using the historical period of the Mayans, pupils will link history and geography together through exploring the roots of two fictional children. They will research the original Mayan meaning of the children's names and then compare these to the origins of their own. Pupils will then collect evidence of how the Mayan people lived in the rainforest in the past, through research, and then share what they find, noting any influences on present day. Concepts NC - Pupils should be taught about a non-European society that provides contrasts with British history Question 1. Additional Knowledge Law and Order  Pupils will identify the importance of having their voices heard through debate and discussion inspired by the debates of Ancient Greeks. They will learn more about the place that founded early democracy and hold elections of their own. NC - Pupils should be taught a study of an aspect or theme in British history that extends pupils' chronological knowledge beyond 1066	Viking Warrior Pupils will explore some of the oral history of the Viking period through the tales told about Ragnar Lothbrok. Pupils will discover that stories of events of this time were often not written down until much later and therefore may not be accurate. As historians, pupils will have to explore further evidence to be sure that certain events took place; Ragnar may not have existed! Pupils will use chronology to plot Viking invasions and relating their time in Britain with that of the Romans and Anglo-Saxons. Pupils will also begin to use questioning and research to find out why the Vikings chose to invade Britain. Finally, pupils will assess evidence of what the Vikings left behind and how they still influence our lives today. Concepts NC - Pupils should be taught about the Viking and Anglo-Saxon struggle for the Kingdom of England to the time of Edward the Confessor <ul style="list-style-type: none"> To know and be able to retell the life story of Ragnar Lothbrok To know the chronology of invaders and settlers in Britain To understand that Viking sagas were often written down many years after the events had possibly happened and, therefore may contain more fiction than fact To understand that evidence from the Viking period was passed from person to person verbally, leading to inaccuracies and omissions To understand why the Vikings invaded Britain To understand the way in which the past impacts on the present
"That's All, Folks!"  Pupils will learn that animation is a process that has developed and changed greatly over time. They will explore the concept of the moving image through making flipbook animations and Zoetropes. They will learn about famous animated characters such as Mickey Mouse and Wallace and Gromit before using computer animation software to create their own modern animations.
Lightning Speed  Pupils will learn about the development of communication over 200 years and then look at the creation of the Internet. They will explore how communication has grown from requiring people to be close by to one another, to sending post to the development of email and the internet as a communication tool. Pupils will learn about Tim Berners-Lee as the creator of the world wide web.

You're Not Invited

 In this unit, pupils will take a deeper look at cause and consequence with a focus on Roman invasion and the expansion of the Roman Empire across Europe. Pupils will be expected to think more analytically, giving reasons for invasion and discuss some of the outcomes, recognising that not all outcomes of invasion are negative. Pupils will use timelines to record important battles from the Roman era, noting key people involved. They will also be encouraged to start drawing their own conclusions about historical events, with evidence to support their thinking.

Concepts

NC - Pupils should be taught about the Roman Empire and its impact on Britain

- A. To learn the meaning of the word 'invasion' and understand the possible reasons for and consequences of an invasion
- B. To know the location of Italy and the Roman Empire
- C. To understand why the Roman Army was so successful in their invasions
- D. To learn about some of the famous battles that took place during the Roman era
- E. To understand the positive impact of the Roman invasions on the inhabitants of those countries invaded

Come Fly With Me! America

 Using a podcast, pupils will listen to the story of how America was discovered and re-tell it in their own words. They will then explore in more depth the impact that European discovery and settlement had on Native American tribes. Pupils will be expected to carry out their own research on a chosen tribe, and then produce a short drama piece on daily life.

Concepts

NC - Pupils should be taught about a non-European society that provides contrasts with British history

- B. To learn about the discovery of America
- C. To know about the Native Americans

Navigators 2 / Year 6

Wars of the World

 This unit studies war in a much wider context. Pupils will explore the causes of war, including analysing the reasons for the conflict in Gaza. Pupils will develop their research skills by finding out more about either WWI or WWII and presenting their findings to their peers, with opportunity to question each other's findings. They will learn the term 'civil war', recognising that conflict does not just occur between two or more countries. As well as the causes, pupils will discuss the consequences of war and the concept of pacifism in preventing conflict and resolving problems in other ways. Pupils will also recognise that war is not just a historic concept but that there are conflicts still occurring across the globe today.

Concepts

NC - Pupils should be taught a study of an aspect or theme in British history that extends pupils' chronological knowledge beyond 1066 Legacy

- A. To know and understand why wars occur
- B. To learn about the two world wars and understand their impact
- C. To understand what a civil war is and have some knowledge of famous civil wars
- D. To know where current wars are taking
- E. To learn about pacifism and the concept of peace

"I Have a Dream..."

 Throughout the pathways, pupils have been made aware of the injustice and segregation imposed on black communities across the globe and throughout history. This unit allows pupils to look in more depth at key discriminatory events in global history. Pupils will analyse the similarities and differences between life under the Jim Crow Laws in the USA and Apartheid in South Africa. They will also learn about the work of Martin Luther King and Nelson Mandela, drawing parallels and discussing the changes made to improve rights for black people in the two countries. Finally, pupils will question and research other forms of discrimination including those that are occurring in the present day.

Concepts

NC - Pupils should be taught about a non-European society that provides contrasts with British history

- A. To learn the definition of apartheid
- B. To know about the Jim Crow Laws and how they affected black people
- C. To learn about Martin Luther King and the impact he had on society
- D. To become familiar with Nelson Mandela's role in the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa
- E. To know about and understand other forms of discrimination e.g. anti-Semitism

Pupils will begin by exploring changes to methods of communication, both on board ship and on land, since the early 20th century. They will look at how the Titanic was built and use inference to imagine how those involved in the design and launch would feel about hearing about the sinking. They will then analyse evidence surrounding the sinking, drawing their own conclusions on who or what was to blame, and discuss sources relating to Molly Brown and Harold Bride's involvement in the event. Concepts <ul style="list-style-type: none"> To learn about the sinking of the famous ship, the Titanic To learn about the communication on the Titanic and how communication methods changed in the last one hundred years To learn about the chronology of the relevant events leading up to the sinking of the Titanic To draw conclusions about what led to the sinking of the Titanic To understand the role played by Molly Brown in the rescue effort To understand the role played by Harold Bride in the rescue effort 	Time Team This is a multi-disciplinary study of the local area. of his famous speeches during World War 2 and discuss how and why these speeches were so important to the morale of the British people both at home and away fighting. Pupils will investigate the reasons why Winston Churchill is now seen as a controversial figure in British cultures due to some of the views that he held.

Additionally, pupils will learn that Churchill was an accomplished painter and will study some of his works in order to produce some artwork of their own in a similar style.

Concepts

- To know who Winston Churchill was and why he is an important figure
To know and be able to retell the life story of Winston Churchill
- To know what the main achievements of Winston Churchill were, both as a very capable politician and military leader
To understand how speech and oratory can have both positive and negative effects
- To know that as well as a politician, Winston Churchill was an accomplished painter
- To know that his views can now be seen as controversial
To understand that, when exploring controversial views, we must look at a wide range of sources before drawing conclusions

Pupils will then compare a map of modern-day Egypt with that of Ancient Egypt. Pupils will turn their focus to some of the important people and places in Ancient Egypt, particularly focusing on Queen Hatshepsut. They will analyse evidence to find reasons why she became queen when women could not traditionally rule, why the people of Egypt were loyal to her and then, strangely, why almost all evidence of her existence as pharaoh were destroyed. Pupils will write a written account of her life, using all the evidence gathered and conclusions drawn.

Concepts

NC - Pupils should be taught about an Early Civilization e.g. Egypt

- To know the location of Egypt
- To know about the significant Ancient Egyptian places and individuals
- To know about Ancient Egyptian beliefs and practices
- To understand how evidence is used to make historical claims
- To understand the importance of the River Nile in Ancient Egyptian times
- To learn about the third female pharaoh, Hatshepsut

End Goals

Explorers / EYFS

Our aim in teaching history in Explorers is to make pupils aware of the world around them and how places and people change over time. By the end of the phase, pupils should have a basic understanding of the passing of time and be able to use vocabulary relating to things that have happened in the recent past. Pupils should be aware that, over time, people change by ageing, and they should be able to identify older people in their lives. As well as people, pupils should know that things also change. They will have had opportunity to observe old and new forms of transport, homes and toys and they should be able to identify those that are from the past and those that are from present day, noting a range of similarities and differences. Pupils should also be able to talk about the roles people have had in society in the past and compare those to present-day occupations.

Pathfinders / KS1

Our aim in teaching history in Pathfinders is to encourage pupils to think about historical change in the wider world. In this phase, pupils will begin to start thinking more chronologically and will have been introduced to simple timelines and dated information. This not only embeds the knowledge of the passing of time but extends it beyond the most recent history of yesterday, last week etc. Pupils will also be expected to know vocabulary such as century and millennium. Pupils should know that changes occur over time across the globe and are effected by many different people. They should be starting to ask questions about how and why changes have happened, such as 'Why did the Elephant Bird become extinct?' or 'How have methods of communication changed?'. In terms of recognising similarities and differences, pupils should not only be able to talk about objects and artefacts that are the same or different but also be aware that beliefs and societies can be compared, for example, the Inuit tribe with their own culture. The Competency Units in this phase have allowed pupils to study a diverse range of individuals, the places and eras they lived in and how they have influenced our lives today. Pupils should know that it is often the decisions and actions of individuals in the past that change our lives in the future.

Adventurers / LKS2

Our aim in teaching history in Adventurers is to broaden pupils' historical horizons so they are learning not only about the more recent past but also about ancient civilisations. Pupils should be exploring source materials and begin to look for bias and accuracy. In this phase, pupils should recognise that some aspects of the past can be interpreted in different ways, and it is up to them as present-day historians to be aware that people in the past can tell their stories differently. History in this phase also encourages pupils to, not only explore similarities and differences, but inclusivity across diverse societies. In the unit 'Cry Freedom', pupils will compare how slavery has been imposed on a range of societies and how people from very different backgrounds can work towards a common goal (Sojourner Truth and William Wilberforce). Pupils should also now recognise that they should not only question why changes happen over time, but they should review the consequences of those changes, such as the legacies left by the Ancient Greeks or the development of the United Nations after the Second World War.

Navigators / UKS2

Our aim in teaching history in Navigators is to deepen pupils' skills in thinking historically and historical comprehension. Pupils should now be confident in using and constructing timelines to organise their findings chronologically and make connections across wider periods of time. They should also be aware that they can not only study objects or artefacts to provide evidence of historical events but that these sources can be split into primary and secondary sources. Pupils should be starting to be more confident in analysing these to provide evidence to support their own thoughts and conclusions about how and why historical events happened. It is important, in this phase, that pupils begin to consider that the way things were done in the past cannot always be viewed through the lens of the present. The same beliefs, values and ideals of the present day are often anachronistic with the past (presentism). In this phase, pupils will also have had the opportunity to link their historical knowledge with other subjects such as geography and they should see how these two areas of learning are closely linked. For example, in Pharaoh Queen, pupils should know that the River Nile is a key geographical feature of Egypt, and was key to the survival of Ancient Egyptians, as well as its importance to those living in Egypt today.
